Preface

WhiteBlaze Pages is designed for thru-hikers, long-distance hikers, and section-hikers on the Appalachian Trail. Its aim is to assist you in determining your location and surrounding features, and to locate nearby re-supply options and other needed services.

With help from the Appalachian Trail Conservancy (ATC), I have made every effort to make this as up to date as possible; however the trail and its surroundings are constantly changing. If you find any inaccurate information in this book, I would greatly appreciate it if you would write through the web site or the email listed in this book.

This book was done by hands-on research and data collection. The establishments in this book do not pay to be listed. I receive no funding to produce this book. I currently do not pay anyone for furnishing information.

HELP ME KEEP THIS GUIDE UP TO DATE

I am constantly trying to find ways to improve this guidebook.

If you have any comments, suggestions, corrections or any other information to help me improve the next edition of this guidebook, contact me through:

Updates and Correction Information

Trail re-routes and other changes often occur after the guidebook has been sent to the printers. You can find the latest corrections at the following web address: (www.whiteblazepages.com/store/2023-wbp-updates)

Understanding the white and blue blazes

White blazes

These blazes are normally 2"x6" in size. The single white blaze is most common, but a double white blaze (two blazes stacked on top of one another) indicate a sharp turn in the trail. On a double blaze the top blaze indicates the direction the trail is turning. If the blaze is to the right of the lower blaze, the trail is turning right. If the blaze is to the left of the lower blaze, the trail is turning left. The white blazes are usually within eyesight of each other but this is not always the case. Over time, the white blazes, and blazes of any color, can fade away and completely disappear.

Blue blazes

These blazes are normally 2"x6" in size. The single blue blaze is most common. A blue blaze is the indication of a spur trail branching off of the Appalachian Trail. Blue blazed trails could lead to a vista, water source, shelter or campground, or some unusual natural feature. The blue-blazed trails may be dead ends but not always. This means that it would be an out-and-back walk to something like a vista. A blue-blazed trail can be an alternate route that allow you to bypass sections of the trail for various reasons. Blue-blazed trails generally rejoin the AT in a mile or two.

AT Passports

For centuries hikers of the Camino de Santiago Trail in Spain required a "passport" to stay in some municipal and parish Albergues. The passport has spaces for stamps, this proved that you have walked that day and are entitled to stay in an Albergue, (pil-grims-only hostels), if there is space, they are valid for walkers and cyclist. The AT Passport is a little different, as a passport is not a requirement to stay at hostels. There are a lot more than just hostels on the AT Passport. The intention of the passport is to document your journey, at designated locations along the trail and in trail towns. These are establishments with stamps that hikers can collect.

The passport often ends up being a treasured possession as it is a great reminder of all the places you have stopped at or stayed overnight. The stamps are all different, no two stamps are alike.

Icons in this book

The icons are intended for quick reference to help you see what is available at that specific location. Read to the right of the icon in the description column for that location to see a better explanation of that item or icon. Icons may have a different meaning depending on the location they reference.

Parentheses, braces, and brackets and their meanings

In this book when something is wrapped in parenthese, braces or brackets they have the following meaning.

Parentheses ()

Parentheses are used in conjunction with mileages. If you see something like (1.3), this means 1.3 miles. If you see something like (1.3W), this means 1.3 to the west. (1.3E) would mean 1.3 to the east.

Braces {}

Braces are used in conjunction with quantities. A number inside of braces is the quantity that something will hold. Shelter {6}, meaning the shelter will sleep 6 people.

Brackets []

Brackets are used in conjunction with GPS coordinates. The GPS coordinates will be inside the brackets. [34.62671,-84.19388].

GPS formatting and icons

The GPS coordinates are in DDD.DDDDDD format. GPS icons in the location descriptions

When there are GPS coordinates it will be noted with an ♀ icon in the "Features" column. The GPS coordinates will be in the description block preceded by the icon it represents.

If the \mathfrak{S} icon is the only icon that precedes the coordinates or there is no icon, this means the coordinates are for the description's location.

GPS coordinates will get you within eyesight of the location.

Profiles and their icons

The profiles are in 30-miles long increments.

The icons on the profiles are placed in reference to their location on the trail as if you are hiking in the northward direction on the Appalachian Trail.

- Anything listed in the mileage data that has text in bold is listed on the profiles.
- If the icon is above the profile image, this means it is to the west side of the trail.
- If the icon is below the profile image, this means it is to the east side of the trail. For off-trail locations, the icons in the profiles are oriented in the following manner:
- Icons above the profile line depict items located on the west side of the trail.
- Icons beneath the profile line depict items located on the east side of the trail.

Description of maps in this book

The maps in this guidebook will display what is of greatest interest to hikers. Priority is given to short and long-term re-supply options, (convenience & full-service grocery stores), post offices, pharmacies, laundry, showers, hostels, and other lodgings. Other services will be listed on the maps, as space permits.

The maps are drawn to scale with a north-is-up orientation, with mileage and compass legend on each map. The direction and mileage to get back to the Appalachian Trail will always be indicated, even if the Appalachian Trail is not displayed on the map.

Special thanks

Special thanks to Ed "atraildreamer" Brown for his many hours of dedicated help with putting this book together. He has been my greatest asset.

Getting to the terminuses

Getting to the Southern Terminus, Springer Mtn

The southern terminus of the Appalachian Trail is on top of Springer Mountain, and is accessible only by foot.

Starting at Amicalola Falls or Big Stamp Gap

There are two factors to consider as to whether you want to start your hike at Big Stamp Gap/USFS 42 or at Amicalola Falls State Park.

1. If starting at Amicalola Falls State Park, you must hike the Approach Trail that leads to the AT. The Approach Trail is 8.8 miles. The Approach Trail includes a staircase of 604 steps. Do you want to add another 8.8 miles onto your already planned 2,100 plus mile hike?

2. If you start at Big Stamp Gap, you are already 1.0 miles north on the AT. If you want to get to Springer Mountain (the actual beginning of the AT) you will have to hike south on the AT for 1.0 miles and then retrace your steps back. This is a very easy in & out hike.

Springer Mountain, Amicalola Falls State Park, Georgia

The closest major city to the southern terminus of the AT is Atlanta, GA, 103 miles from Big Stamp Gap and the nearest point to get on the AT. It is 82 miles from Amicalola Falls State Park, if you want to hike the Approach Trail. Some shuttle services will pick you up in Atlanta, but it is more economical to take Greyhound or AMTRAK to Gainesville to go 42 miles to Big Stamp Gap or 38 miles from the Amicalola Falls State Park.

Greyhound, (www.greyhound.com/north).

AMTRAK, (www.amtrak.com/).

Suggestions:

Hikers will likely find information directing them from the Atlanta airport to take public transportation (MARTA) from the airport to North Springs MARTA station and find a ride to the AT from there. Some have found an Uber ride to Amicalola Falls Park where they ascend the 8 mile approach trail to the AT starting point, to the summit of Springer Mountain. MARTA train schedules, (www.martaguide.com/train-schedules/)

However, shuttle drivers like to avoid the very heavy traffic around North Springs, where snarled traffic often adds 2-3 hours to a trip leaving other hikers waiting. It is much faster to ride directly from the Atlanta airport to the top of Springer Mountain by a route that avoids the GA Hwy 400 traffic. By doing this, you will avoid a long, expensive ride around Atlanta to North Springs, finding transportation to Amicalola, paying for a campsite or a room at the lodge, and spending a day on the Approach Trail.

Going directly to Springer Mountain can save a hiker at least one and a half days by avoiding the Approach Trail out of Amicalola Falls State Park, but costing perhaps $30 more than the North Springs route.

Driving directions to Springer Mountain from Amicalola Falls State Park

Turn right when leaving Highway 52 for 7.8 miles.

Follow Southern Road for 7.8 miles.

Turn right onto Roy Road for 5.0 miles.

Turn right onto Doublehead Road for 2.1 miles until you see Mt. Pleasant Church on your left.

Turn right onto dirt road (Forest Service Road 42 is unsigned).

You should see a large sign indicating that this is the entrance to the Blue Ridge Wildlife Management Area. There should also be a small brown sign saying: "Springer Mt. 6.5 miles".

Driving directions from points in GA Getting to Springer from points in northern GA

Get on US 76 in northern GA

Follow US 76 east until you get to Ellijay.

Once in Ellijay, follow the directions I mentioned below for Ellijay.

Getting to Springer from Ellijay, GA (from western GA)

From Ellijay get on GA 52 East for about 5.3 miles.

Turn left onto Big Creek Road, which will turn into Doublehead Road. Stay on these roads for 12.6 miles.

Turn right onto dirt road (Forest Service Road 42 is unsigned).

You should see a large sign indicating that this is the entrance to the Blue Ridge Wildlife Management Area. There should also be a small brown sign saying: "Springer Mt. 6.5 miles".

▲ "Bear canisters seasonally required for camping between Jarrard Gap and Neel Gap"

A new U.S. Forest Service rule requires approved bear-resistant storage containers for overnight camping on a 5-mile stretch of the A.T. in the Chattahoochee National Forest between Jarrard Gap and Neel Gap, between March 1 and June 1 each year. This stretch is located between points 26.7 and 31.3 miles north of the southern terminus of the A.T. at 1 each year. This stretch is located between points 26.7 and 31.3 miles north of the southern terminus of the A.T. at Springer Moutain, Georgia, and includes Woods Hole Shelter, Slaughter Creek Campsite, and Blood Mountain Shelter. Bear canisters should be used to store food, food containers, garbage and toiletries.

2000-Miler = A person who has hiked the entire distance of the trail either by thru-hiking or section hiking. Also known as an End-to-ender.

Alpine Zone = The area consisting of all the land above tree line in New England. (See: Treeline).

AMC = The "Appalachian Mountain Club" has a huge presence in the White Mountains of New Hampshire, as well as throughout some of the more popular backcountry destinations across New England. The run a number of high-end Huts.

AT, A.T. =The Appalachian Trail.

AYCE = All You Can Eat Restaurants that offer all you can eat buffets are very popular with hungry hikers.

AYH = The abbreviation for American Youth Hostels.

Bald = A low elevation mountain surrounded by forest yet devoid of trees on the crown. Typically covered with meadows, balds can offer great views and are a good place to find wild berries, they also attract much wildlife. A southern term.

Base Weight = The weight of your backpack plus all the gear that's inside it, but not counting consumables like food, water and fuel.

Bear bag = The bag used by hikers to hang their food out of reach of bears and other critters.

Bear cable = A permanent cable rigged high between two trees specifically for hanging bear bags.

Blow-down = A tree or shrub that has fallen across the Trail.

Blue blaze = Spur trails off the AT. Leading to shelters, views, water sources etc. are often marked by AT style blazes painted Blue.

Blue-blazer = A long-distance hiker who substitutes a section of blue-blazed trail for a white-blazed section between two points on the Trail.

Bog bridge = Narrow wooden walkway placed to protect sensitive wetlands. (See: Puncheon).

Bounce box = A mail-drop type box containing seldom used necessities that is 'bounced', (mailed), ahead to a town where you think you might need the contents.

Brown-blazing = Taking an off-trail detour to take a dump. Bushwhack = To hike where there is no marked trail.

Cache = A Cache is a place where you store gear, food and other supplies before a long trip. The Cache is usually on or near the trail, allowing you to resupply when you reach it.

Cairn = A structure made of rocks used to mark a trail where trees aren't present for Blazes, like in Alpine Zones. Some are just loose piles while others are more decorative. Camel Up = Cameling Up is a process to help you stay hydrated without needing to carry lots of heavy water bottles during your hike. When you reach a water source, you refill quickly -- usually with an inline filter like a Sawyer Mini -- and then gulp down all the water immediately before heading off down the trail again. This allows you to get the water into your system quickly while avoiding the need to carry heavy, full water bottles (2.2 pounds per liter!) on the hike. A technique commonly used by Ultralight hikers.

Cat Hole = A small hole dug by a hiker for the deposit of human waste when CDT = The "Continental Divide Trail," a 3,100 mile long trail, following the Continental Divide along the Rocky Mountains and traversing Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado, and New Mexico.

Col and Sag = Typically dips in the ridge without a road, while Gap and Notch are typically larger dips that have a road going through. Sag is a typically southern term, as is Gap, while Col and Notch are typically northern terms. Water Gap, is of course, a Gap with a river.

Col and Notch are typically northern terms. Water Gap, is of course, a Gap with a river.

Shuttle Providers & Sections

Who is considered a shuttle provider?

A shuttle provider is a person that will shuttle hikers to different locations, or trail heads up and down the Appalachian Trail. They usually charge a fee.

Who is not considered a shuttle provider?

The person that picks a hiker up from a trail head close to their establishment and back in the same trail head in the morning, if the hiker stays at their establishment. This is not considered a shuttle provider.

This is a listing of Appalachian Trail shuttle providers. The Trail is divided up into 11 sections, each section is roughly about 200 miles. If the shuttle provider covers one of these sections, there will be a shuttle icon under that section and all other icons that pertain to the area covered by them. However, just because the icon is under that section it does not mean they cover that entire section. Please refer to the mileage where they are listed in this guidebook to read their full description and see what they have listed for coverage.

Not all shuttle providers listed in this guidebook carry insurance. If we have them listed as insured, it is only because they told us they were insured. We did not verify this, we took their word for it. It is up to you to ask the shuttle provider whether or not they are insured and/or licensed to do transport or trust them and take a ride without them being insured.

This listing is for informational purposes only. I receive no funding for posting this information.

Note: Shuttles are not free. Talk with the provider about their costs.

Hikers should be sure of their location for a pick-up and give the driver as many details as possible, maybe even GPS coordinates.
